

SLEEPS FOR SWEAT-SHOPS.

Mr. Reinhard and His Committee to Investigate Them Incognito.

RECESS UNTIL SEPTEMBER.

Assemblymen Abandon Public Sessions for Personal Observation.

WAGE-EARNERS ON $1 A WEEK.

Some Get Even Less and Live on Bread Crusts and Bologna in Wretched Little Rooms.

The members of the Reinhard Assembly Committee, which is investigating the condition of working girls in New York City, have determined on a new plan to learn the secrets of sweat-shops.

The committee met this morning in the Aldermanic Chamber at City Hall, Assemblymen Reinhard, Wilks and Steinberg being present.

Edward Thimme was the first witness. He made an investigation last year into the manner in which shops that make hosiery are conducted.

The investigation was made for F. Fulton Cutting, of the Society for the Improvement of the Poor. He visited eighty-seven shops in all.

The average pay of all engaged in making the pants was not over 45 cents a week.

"The shops were, with few exceptions, cramped for room and in horrible sanitary condition," said the witness.

Morris Schwartz, of 65 Forsyth street, told the witness that he worked for E. Lidovitz, of 115 Bowery; that he was on duty from twelve to fourteen hours a day, with a half hour for dinner, and that his earnings were never over $3 a week.

"Another man I found proved to me that, although he was working steadily, his earnings ranged from 71 cents to $1 a week."

"This was about a year ago and then the trade was fairly prosperous. This man did sewing of various kinds and was fairly intelligent," said Mr. Thimme.

Another case was that of Ansel Spaulding, who, although employed at all the times, made only from 75 cents to $1 a week.

"Why, how do these people live?" asked Lawyer Meyer.

"Their food consists chiefly of bologna and crusts of bread," was the reply.

"Families take in boarders, and their homes are in the most squalid quarters."

"The present system of inspection doesn't inspect. My opinion is that the Factory Department should be abolished and that the work should be placed in the hands of the Health Department."

Maria Livers, of 365 East Twenty-second street, works on piano strings for Riensworth, of 336 Second avenue, testified that she was paid one cent for every ten wires on which she put a hook, and that she averaged about $5 a week.

John Russell, foreman of the string department in Doll's piano manufactory at Thirtieth street and First avenue, testified that the work done by the Livers girl was really a man's employment.
